

CHANGING THE POINT OF VIEW

The following is a passage from A Tree's Life. Change it to the third person.

I'm a giant sequoia tree. We sequoias are some of the oldest, widest, tallest trees in the world. We're originally from the mountains of California, but now you can find a few of us in other states and countries, too. Animals love me. Birds nest in my branches. Bats roost here. Squirrels eat my cones. Other animals hide and rest in my shade. I can reach up to 300 feet tall and live to be 3000 years old.

This is a giant sequoia tree.
