Read the following story and complete the given table.

Sarah's father always used to tell her that it is important to have rules at home just like in school because it helps everyone get along better.

Sarah once broke the rule about calling home if it ever got late. Her father got worried and her mother called many of her friends to check on her. When Sarah's little sister Casey saw how worried everyone was, she started to cry.

When the baby heard Casey cry, he started crying too. Sarah's mother rushed to pick him up, but tripped on the rug and hurt herself. Just then, Sarah walked in.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I went to have ice cream with my friend and didn't realize how late it was." When Sarah realized what had happened, she was very sorry. Now, she never forgets to call.
