

READ IT AND FIND IT

Read the story. Then, fill in the chart of cause and effect.

Yesterday, I decided to bake cookies for my family. I gathered all the ingredients and started mixing them in a big bowl. However, I accidentally dropped the bag of flour, and it burst open, spilling flour all over the kitchen floor. I quickly tried to clean it up, but as I was sweeping, I knocked over a glass of water, which spilled onto the counter and made the surface slippery. When I reached for a towel to wipe it up, I slipped and fell, knocking over the bowl of cookie dough in the process. My dog, who had been patiently watching from the corner, seized the opportunity and dashed into the kitchen, gobbling up the dough before I could stop him. As I sat there amidst the mess, I couldn't help but laugh at the chaos I had caused.

READ IT AND FIND IT

Read the story. Then, fill in the chart of cause and effect.

CAUSE	EFFECT
Dropped bag of flour
	Knocked over a glass of water
Knocked over a glass of water
	Dog dashed into the kitchen and ate the cookie dough
	Left the kitchen in a mess, and the cookies couldn't be baked

